An info session of the University of Pennsylvania International Master of Public Administration (I-MPA) will be held on January 25 at 12:00PM at 821 Anderson Hall, Temple University.

The I-MPA is an innovative graduate degree for high-achieving students who are fluent in English and proficient in Mandarin. The one academic year program is anchored in the social and behavioral sciences and provides a skill-based, career enhancing curriculum that focuses on comparative public administration, global leadership and public-private problem-solving. Students who graduate from the program may be eligible to receive a summer alumni fellowship supported by a grant of $5,000.

Speaker: Bingqing Meng, Global Leadership Fellow of Fox Leadership International, University of Pennsylvania
